Learning Annex/Donald Trump Real Estate Expo is Hot! 25,000 Expected for Superstar Wealth Builder Donald Trump

How hot is Real Estate?

So hot that 20,000 people showed up last fall in New York to attend the Learning Annex Real Estate Wealth Expo to learn from the very best: Donald Trump.

So hot that an even bigger crowd (25,000) is expected when Mr. Trump will teach in Los Angeles on April 30th and May 1st 2005. With prices rising nearly every day, and home values increasing by as much as $100,000 a month throughout Southern California, Real Estate investing has reached a fever pitch.

According the Learning Annex President and Founder Bill Zanker, “There has never been a more clear-cut opportunity to learn how to make big-time money in Real Estate. Many of the students who attended the New York event are now millionaires – and the West Coast real estate market is actually even stronger than the East Coast! No one talks about sex anymore; Real Estate is the new aphrodisiac.”

This is a weekend not to be missed. A very special appearance by the #1 peak performance success coach, Tony Robbins will open up the 2 day weekend. Other keynotes include Rich Dad Poor Dad bestselling author Robert Kiyosaki, mega-entrepreneur Russell Simmons, Trading Spaces designer Doug Wilson and the ultimate session with Mr. Trump himself!

Over 70 other seminars from the leading Real Estate experts in the country will teach everything from foreclosures and abandoned properties to quick turn real estate and negotiation tips! With over 100 exhibitors from brokers, lenders, and investors on hand, there is no doubt that many deals will get done on the expo floor.

Additional dates for this show are October 22 & 23, New York and November 5 & 6 in Chicago – 9 Dates are currently in the planning stages for 2006.
